We spent three years interviewing health professionals and surveying college students across the country to collect the best advice - what they wished they’d known when they first stepped on campus - and while it's packed with research-backed tips, it reads much more like a BuzzFeed article than a dry health pamphlet.”

- Lowlights: We are still trying to find ways for our new members to remember all of the rules.
- Questions: If one of our members signed up for the symposium and were not able to make it, can they sign up for the October 23rd one. Basically, she signed up and couldn't make it and now it will not let her register for another one.
 - YES - email general email about it

Also Sophie, for the event tmr, when you say check in with their Red ID does that mean that they just like go to the booth and tell them their Red ID or what is the best way to register? And where should they send their selfies too at the event?

- Yes! There should be areas to check in with their redID's! I can chat with Noor about how she'll want to collect attendance for accred but for now just collect them via a google form, and send it my way after! I would say do it the same way you would do for an SDSU one event where girls have to attend tablings and such
